(a) Up to and including 1958 average rainfall for each year (represented by 100) is the average over the period 1911–1942. As from 1st January, 1959 a long period average from a selection of representative stations is used.

SEASONAL CONDITIONS, TASMANIA: JULY, 1966

Rainfall: During July 1966, falls were well above normal in all divisions except Flinders Island, (deficiency 15%). Positive departures ranged from over 70% in the South East to less than 10% in the West, Central Plateau and East Coast. Falls in the Midlands were nearly 70% above normal, and the best in this relatively dry area since April, 1965. The July falls improved cumulative totals for the year to 89% of normal for the state, and in the Midlands, South East, West Coast and King Island divisions cumulative deficiencies were reduced to less than 10%. Greatest deficiency was still in the East Coast division, which received only 74% of normal, for the first seven months of the year.

Temperature: Only three centres registered above normal mean temperatures during the month—Scottsdale, Redpa and Currie, where departures were less than half a degree. Negative departures were more than 1° in other parts of the North East, North, North West and West and reached a maximum of 2.6° at Zeehan. Departures elsewhere were less than 1°. Maximum temperature for the month was 63° on the 6th and 24th at St. Helens, on the 23rd at Kingston and on the 24th at Swansea. The minimum (15°) was on the 8th at Bothwell.

Rural Conditions: Pasture growth was reported generally throughout the state in the first half of the month, but afterwards was restricted to the more favoured coastal districts, as severe frosts in the second half damaged autumn saved pasture and some cereal crops. Forage crops responded well to the July rains, and cereal crops generally made considerable growth. Sowings of wheat, green peas and potatoes and harvesting of potatoes were interrupted by the rain. Seasonal dairy herds calving during July met improving green feed conditions, and lamb losses in most areas were about normal for the month.
